

Nationals' Manager May Return Today---Lelivelt Suffering From Charley-Horse

MALEER EXPECTED TO ARRIVE IN TIME FOR TODAY'S MELEE

Reported to Have Received All Concessions Asked for in Boston Deal.

PLAN IS TO CONTINUE TILL SEASON'S END

Jack Lelivelt Still a Cripple, Sprained Leg Proving Great Drawback.

By "SENATOR."

Manager McAleer, satisfied with the successful conclusion of the negotiations whereby he obtains an interest in the Boston Americans, is expected to arrive during the afternoon, and be on the bench at National Park when the Nationals face the St. Louis Browns.

So far as can be learned there was no hitch of any sort at the meeting in Boston, and the present Washington leader got all the concessions he asked for from the Nationals. The plan now is to have McAleer continue here until the close of the season, when he will take up his duties as president of the Red Sox.

That badly sprained tendon in Jack Lelivelt's left leg has failed to respond to treatment, and the outfielder is still a cripple. Lelivelt has tried several ways to work out the "charley horse," but today he moves about with about as much difficulty as when he first hurt himself.

The injury has proven quite a drawback to the Nationals, for Lelivelt is conceded to be one of the best emergency hitters in the league, and with him out of commission it has been necessary to use some inferior hitter for relief purposes.

It appears doubtful that Lelivelt will be able to take a place in the lineup for at least two weeks.

Diamond Gossip.

In Ward Miller the Cubs have copped the star outfielder of the Eastern League.

Detroit pitchers have gone to the bowdows, and the Tigers will be lucky to retain second place.

The Boston Rustlers look to be the only team that can get to "Rube" Marquard, the Giant beat.

Brooklyn fans are well pleased with the showing made by "Red" Smith, the new Superstar third baseman.

Pitcher "Buck" O'Brien, of the Boston Red Sox, won twenty-four and lost five games, pitching for Denver last season.

Nothing loose in Pennantville for Roger Bresnahan this season, but his Cardinals threw a regular scare into the big boys, at that.

Rubber underwear must have been the right number for Tommy Madden. The fat rat is doing great work behind the bat for the Quakers.

Bill Setley, former player, umpire, and promoter, is on his way to Honolulu, and will bring back a college ball team composed of Chinese boys.

Having failed to put over a deal for the Boston Nationals, it is said that Ned Hanlon is now trying to purchase an American League franchise.

A post-season series of games will be played between the pennant winners of the Wisconsin-Illinois and the Minnesota-Wisconsin Leagues.

Curtis, the former Boston Rustler, and Madden, the ex-Boston Red Sox catcher, now form a battery for the Philadelphia Quakers.

Joe Agler, of the Newark team, is the star among the first basemen of the Eastern League. Out of 134 chances he has made just fifteen bobbles.

Howard Darringer, playing with Duquesne in the Three-I League, recently set up a freak home-run record when he made three four-base wallops in three consecutive games.

Speculation and curiosity are now acute concerning the manner in which the automobiles entered in the Glidden tour from New York to Jacksonville, Fla., will line up as to formation of teams. The decision to name the teams according to the cities from which the entries emanate and the rule permitting individual motorists to decide which car they will drive, even if they shall join, puts a new phase on reliability competition because it is certain that several teams will be composed of cars that in everyday business, are strong rivals. Under these conditions the participation of private motorists, already one of the features of the tour, will result in lining up groups of cars not necessarily of the same make, but each competing against the other in the matter of piston displacement.

Another "white hope" gone.

Georgetown enters upon a most promising football year, and its followers will have to be shown if the eleven fails to win its important battles. Coach Nielsen and Assistant Coach Gargan have the men, and that's half the fight.

Wow, wasn't he wallowed!

George McCaa, former captain and fullback at Lafayette, is coaching the eleven at New Hampshire State. He was leader of the team that defeated Princeton in 1908, his mighty kicking going far toward achieving that end. McCaa was one of the greatest kickers in the history of college football.

Looks like Hilton.

Jimmy McAleer will do well to hike to Boston as soon as he can, if he would learn much about that wobbly outfit up there. There is much to be done if the Red Sox are to be counted on for the honors next season, and Jim will be but wasting his time here. However, he knows his business, and, doubtless, will arrange things to suit him.

All up for the Bankers!

Tom Shevlin, once an All-American end on Walter Camp's team, is back at New Haven to teach the youngsters a few new wrinkles about the game of football. When the last signal is given next November the show-boys will do their very best to show that his coming did this or that and then, a week or so later, those same experts will show that what he taught Yale has been taught there for the last ten years. That's what happened last season.

Governor Dix wants boxing.

The terrific beating handed Carl Morris last night was not unexpected. It is impossible for a big man to learn the boxing game in a year. He showed himself bulky, green, a weak hitter, but game to the core. It takes more than this to make a ring champion and it will be well for him to stay in Oklahoma—yes, even to get that engineer's job back again. Mere gameness never won a title.

Logan Cunningham is on the job.

The St. Louis Browns are here today, going through the motions. Bobby Wallace, though often hearing that he is to be succeeded in the leadership next year, keeps on running the outfit and is now trying out likely lads for the places of the veterans. This is the seedy time of the baseball year when the fans see half a dozen unknowns in every game, but it is the young recruit who makes baseball the fastest sport in the world and we ought to be able to sit quietly in our seats and watch them at work. The Browns have several rookies in their line-up, some of whom may become stars of the first magnitude.

Wet for football today.

It is strange in all this naming of managers for the 1912 Nationals we hear so little of Mike Kahoe. This veteran player and successful scout knows players when he sees them, knows the game from A to Z, and, like Fred Lake, might graduate easily from scouting to managing. He has been through the mill and knows just what the task is facing the leader of the local team next season. President Noyes might go farther and fare worse than picking Kahoe for a trial. However, there is time for the owners of the club to look over the field and select the best man available. But if they seek one who knows this club and the

PLANS FOR TEAM AROUSING MANY

Opportunity to Discuss McAleer Successorship Afforded by Interference of the Rain With the Opening St. Louis Series Yesterday.

By "SENATOR."

The one day's respite on account of the flooded condition of the ball park, gave those directly interested in the Washington ball club an opportunity to reflect upon recent developments and to tentatively plan upon the course to follow now that James McAleer is entirely out of the organization.

Hardly had the report been circulated that McAleer was to reopen negotiations for a block of stock in the Boston club before the over enthusiastic fans commenced to file suggestions at headquarters, with the result that there is hardly an available man in baseball who has not already been nominated for the berth which McAleer is vacating. So numerous have been the propositions advanced to President Tom Noyes, and the rest, that it is almost impossible to decide as to just who is the most popular man for the managerial place. Already at least a score of names have been proposed, but for the benefit of the fans it might as well be stated here that all of this is useless, as it can be stated on absolute authority that the directors of the club have no intention whatever of seriously considering the question of a 1912 manager until well in the winter, when the annual meeting is held.

Possibly An Outsider.

From what can be learned there is not a man living who can say who the new manager will be, but the writer today received from high authority a strong intimation that the man who is to succeed McAleer will not be selected from the rank and file of the present team.

McBride, Schaefer, Elberfeld, and several others have been mentioned, but would like to see them directing the Nationals, but the impression among the fans is that when a vote is taken it will be found that the new manager will be an experienced man who is through with this playing days, and who can be counted upon in an executive position being especially valuable in trades, drafting, and the purchase of new men.

It is pointed out that as desirable as may be a playing manager, the wisest course is to have an old hand, and in order to accomplish this purpose it will be necessary to have one well versed in the politics of the game and capable of thinking faster than those with whom he will be called upon to deal.

Ordinarily when a new manager is signed it is with the intention of getting the best results from the team in the hands of the new manager, but in the case of the Washington club the principal concern is the rehabilitation of the whole team by the introduction of new players. To profit the most in these future deals it will be essential to the success of the team to have an old hand, and it is for such just such sort of a man that the owners are now on a quiet hunt.

It is no violation of a confidence to say that at least one of the owners

Boston Fans Hope For Better Days

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—Boston baseball fans today are looking forward to improved conditions in Boston's American League club, following the closing of the deal yesterday whereby James R. McAleer and others obtained half interest from the Nationals.

McAleer has returned to Washington, and is not expected to return here permanently until the first of the year, when, together with Robert R. McRoy, he will take charge of the office and begin definite preparations for next season.

Already work has begun on the new park in the Fenway, and it is expected that this will surely be finished by April. From one close to the club officials, it is understood that the baseball corporation will pay an annual rental of $15,000 to General Taylor for the use of the new plant.

McAleer's Share.

While nothing is admitted concerning the amount of money each individual put up in the deal it is said that McAleer put up $50,000 of his own funds, and that the rest of the $150,000 came from parties who will have McRoy as their representative.

The official statement issued after the deal had been made was as follows:

"Negotiations connected with the sale of an interest in the Boston American League baseball club have resulted in the purchase of a half interest by James R. McAleer, of Washington, and Robert R. McRoy, of Chicago."

"As both of these gentlemen have been actively engaged elsewhere, they will not be able to come to Boston until the beginning of the year of 1912. At that time they will come to Boston to live, and join in the active management of the Red Sox. Both are versed in baseball, and have marked ability, and they ought greatly to aid in the rehabilitation of the team."

"Plans for a new ball park, which will be a credit to Boston, now will be formulated, and the work pushed ahead at a rapid rate."

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 16.—Fight fans here are wondering today if Omaha is to be "Milwaukeeized" following the refusal of the police to allow the bout between Mike Kahoe and Carl Nuvick, of Omaha, last night. Marty O'Toole May

Face Giants Today

PITTSBURG, Sept. 16.—Following the tussle with the Cubs in which they landed three out of four games, the Pirates today inaugurate a series with the Giants.

The New York aggregation looks like a pennant winner, but the series may enable Chicago to creep back into the American League race, and who has been the pitching sensation of Ban Johnson's circuit this season.

Sugden was with Vancouver, and also keeping a close watch on the athletes of the Pacific coast with intentions of tipping Cleveland off to any player who promised to develop.

"Speck" Harkness was with Butte, Mont. in the Northwestern League in 1908, and he had written the Cleveland club about him. Joe got no reply from Cleveland, and let the matter drop.

Manager Clarke may use Marty O'Toole this afternoon, although it is not certain that the $2,500 pitcher is altogether fit. McGraw hasn't peeped a word, and it's a toss-up whether he will use Mathewson or Marquard.
